Feedback on My Study Choice

1. Goal 1 – Using My Strength

My first goal was to use my habit of starting early to finish my next school project without stress. I planned to complete the first part of the work during the first week and finish the entire project at least two days before the deadline. My goal was not fully developed on paper, but I explained it well during the presentation.

2. My Choice of Study

The feedback showed that my reasons for choosing Data Science were not entirely clear. However, I realised that Data Science is not the right study for me. I prefer building and creating things rather than analysing data. I also have concerns about future opportunities in this field because of the growing influence of AI.

Conclusion

Based on the feedback and my own interests, I have decided that Data Science is not the right study for me. I prefer a practical and creative study where I can build things and see better opportunities for my future.
